This Zoo Checker Feedback form should be used to record all your observations and thoughts during your visit, or after your visit, to a zoo or other wild animal attractions.

For our campaign, we hope to use photographic and film evidence. If you do have access to a camera or a video camera its use, to record animals, enclosures, information available, events and anything else that you feel is relevant will be extremely useful to us. But don't worry if you do not have a camera. Your help in whatever shape or form will be greatly appreciated.

After you fill in your notes, you can submit your information online at www.api4animals.org/alb_zoocheck.php

Please send all information and developed film to Zoo Check at Born Free USA united with API. Please note that we prefer to maintain a full documentation file on each facility, so we will not return film/photographs unless requested. If however, you would like the material returned, we would welcome a small donation to cover costs of copying and return postage. Thank you.

If you need more space to answer any of the questions on this form then please attach a separate piece of paper.

Abnormal Behavior:

You may have seen animals pacing back and forth, continually licking the bars, playing with or eating their own feces or even inflicting physical damage to themselves, known as self-mutilation. All these are examples of “stereotypic behavior,” abnormal behavior that has resulted from years of deprivation. Please answer the following considering carefully the animals which you saw. If you are using this form before visiting a captive animal facility we recommend observing the animals for at least ten minutes at intervals throughout your visit and note down their behavior. The abnormal behaviors described below may then become more easily recognized.

Pacing – continuous pacing back and forth.

Head-bobbing – moving the head continuously up and down.

Rocking / swaying – rolling motion from side to side.

Circling – walking round and round, often walking in the same footprints time and time again.

Neck-twisting – unnatural twisting of the neck.

Bar-biting / sucking – gnawing the bars.

Tongue-playing – continuous licking of the bars or wall.

Vomiting – vomiting and then eating the vomit.

Coprophagia – playing with or eating own feces.

Over-grooming – grooming or ‘hair plucking’ to excess – often have bald patches.

Self-mutilation or abuse – tail biting, leg chewing, head bashing, etc.
